PRAISE FOR THE BOOK

"Redemption is a passionate advocacy for ending the killing of homeless dogs and cats in shelters. Telling the story of how the movement of animal sheltering in the United States was born of compassion and lost its way. . . Redemption offers hope that America can yet change its ways. Highly recommended."

—Midwest Book Review

"An important work."

—The Bark magazine

"Within its pages, readers and animal lovers can find the blueprint not so much for our failure to save the animals in our communities, but for our ability to start doing so today."

—San Francisco Chronicle (SFGate.com)

"One of the most important books you'll read this year."

—Pajiba.com

"I cannot remember any work that has so dramatically altered my point of view on any subject—nor another book that has me so excited to think of what real reform can do to save the lives of shelter pets." —Petconnection.com

"For anyone who has ever loved an animal, this book, like no other non-fiction, takes you through the full spectrum of emotions: from sadness to anger, from fear to hope. But redemption? That is ultimately left up to each and every one of us. . ."

—Air America Radio

"[A] unique and important book."

—Library Journal

"Love animals? Then don't miss Nathan Winograd's Redemption."

—Dogpolitics.com

"[An] excellent, empowering new book." —Fetchdog.com

"[T]he most provocative and best-informed overview of animal sheltering ever written."

—Animal People

PRAISE FOR THE AUTHOR

"Millions of healthy animals are [killed] in shelters every year. Nathan Winograd wants that reduced to zero . . . Winograd is helping to save thousands, even millions."

—Reader's Digest

"Bow-WOW! Nathan J. Winograd. This extraordinary pet-loving former attorney is out to make the world safe for homeless animals—one region at a time."

—Metropolitan Home

"The world owes much to those rare individuals who see things differently—and who then devote themselves to vindicating their maverick conclusions."

—The Bark
